Joaquin Miller's Improvidence.

[From the Pittsburgh Chronicle/Telegraph.] trying to catch up ever since."

England's Foreign Policy Crippled. The condition of Ireland is telling just now seriously on English foreign policy, as it did once before at the close of the American war. There are about 30,000 good troops in Ireland who are sorely needed on the Nile, but General Steele, who is in command, says he cannot spare a man of them. There is something melancholy, under these circumstances, in the talk of a visit of the Prince of Wales to Ireland as a sort of a sedative. Forty years ago, when the young Queen was making her plans for life, the transfer of the court during a portion of the year to Ireland, a little fostering of Irish sentimental nationalism, such as has been bestowed so lavishly on that of Scotland, would doubtless have had a great deal of political effect. After Before the savage could repeat his unhalf a century of neglect, however, on looked-for blow, so near the ranks of the part of royalty-neglect that may almost be called studied and the infusion into the Irish mind from this side of the Atlantic of Republicanism m its least reverential form, coupled with savage social discontents, the Irish are hardly likely to receive the Prince in a very cordial way.-N. The rich resinous seconds only, for the savage horde of swartby negroes from Kardsfan and straight-haired, tawny-complexioned Arabs of the Bayuda Steppe were fast closing in upon our square. Col. Burnaby fenced the swarthy Arab as if he were playing in an assault at arms, and there was a smile on his features as he drove off the man's awkward points. The scene was taken in at a glauce. With that lightning instinct which I have seen desert warriors before now display in battle while coming to one another's aid, an Arab, who was pursuing a soldier and had passed five paces to Burnsby's right and rear, turned with a sudden spring, and this second Arab ran his spear point into the Colonel's right shoulder. It was but a slight wound. enough, though, to cause Burnaby to twist around in his saddle and defend himself from this unexpected attack. enacted, a soldier ran out and drove his sword-bayonet through the second assailant. Brief as was Burnaby's glance backward at this fatal episode it was long enough to enable the first Arab to deliver his spear point full in the brave officer's throat. The blow drove Burnaby out of his saddle, but it required a second one before he let go his grip of the roins and tumbled upon the ground. Half a dozen Arabs were now about him. With blood gushing in streams from his gashed throat, the dauntless Guardsman leapt to his feet, sword in hand, and slashed

A Disability Which Should be Re-

The principle that religious belief has nothing to do, and ought to have nothing to do, with a man's credibility as a witness is now acknowledged in the jurisprudence of most civilized countries, including twenty-eight appointed Minister to England. Senator held that a man who "denied under the genial sunlight his belief in who devoutly acknowledged it." The object of a court of law in examining witnesses is to find out the truth about a particular transaction, and not to liscourage infidelity. No man conducts his business or his social life on the assumption that atheists are untruthful or dishonest; and to administer justice so as to deprive him of such a theory, is monstrous as well as Cure for Diphtheria. Personalities. Keep clear of personalities in general conversation. Talk of things, ob- tory jects, thoughts. The smallest minds ccupy themselves with personalities. Personalities must sometimes be talked, because we have to learn and find out men's characteristics for legitimate objects; but it is to be with confidential persons. Do not needlessly eport ill of others. There are times when we are compelled to say, "I do not think Bouncer is a true and honest man." In Bavaria the price of beer determines everything. Sedlmayer, the owner of the world-renowned brewery. Zum Shaten, has done something almost revolutionary. He has reduced the price of his beer 2 pfennigs per litre. His brother brewers immediately called an indignation meeting, but finally concluded to follow Sedlmayer's example. Whether it be in consequence of Munich's historical thirst healthy does not wish to dine at a disfact that the consumption of beer has this year reached an amount exceeding anything previously known. In the Hof Brau 50,000 maas were sold in two days. Basing the calculation on the average, the yearly consumption of beer there is much above 280 litres per head.

A well-known French financier predicts that a few years hence the European continent will be nothing but a casino for the white races of America, Africa and Australia. Agriculture in Europe is played out, he says, and her vogue during the French Directoire factory and mining industry will be similarly supplanted by the vast coal fields and infinite petroleum of Russia in Aris, and by the mineral wealth of America, China, Australia, and the still enexplored mountains of New Zealand. This alarmist winds up with the consoling remark that England may make a livelihood as a training place for boys, because its climate favoes open-air muscular exercise.-Washington Republican.
